

“Too many of our young men are navigating through life without a sense of purpose which allows for the opportunity for them to be misguided and that must stop.”

- Harry King, CEO

Our Goals:

- To empower young men with a sense of purpose as they transition into adulthood
- To give young men tools needed to live a more disciplined and focused lifestyle

One of the most effective ways for a person to learn is as an active participant in the critical thinking element of an experience. Kingdom Empowerment will provide exercises that will allow participants to grow through an inclusive process. This program will give participants the opportunity to connect what they are learning with “real world” experiences that essentially cultivate an active listener. As we navigate through this journey called life, we want to have a sense of direction that keeps us on the right path. Kingdom Empowerment will do that.
